LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A shortage of $9,810.82 existed in the official bank account of former Sebastian County Clerk Paul Pace when he left office Dec. 31, 1956, the State Comptroller's office reported today.

The audit report said that the money was repaid by Pace on Feb. 14, 1957.

The report said the repayment was made by Pace in the presence of his father, Jack Pace, who last week was elected mayor of Fort Smith, an office he previously had held.

At the time of the investigation and the repayment, Paul Pace was county and probate clerk of Sebastian County.

He resigned that position while the audit was under way and Gov. Orval Faubus has appointed a successor.

Paul Pace was appointed circuit clerk Sept. 1, 1955, to fill a vacancy and was elected county clerk last year, taking the latter office on Jan. 1.

Neither the circuit clerk's office since Jan. 1 nor the county clerk's office during Paul Pace's brief tenure there was involved in the repaid shortage.

The period of the audit was from March 1, 1956 to Dec. 31, 1956, the first two months of last year already having been audited.

Aubrey McCasland, director of county audit for the comptroller, said in his report that "the fee records in the circuit clerk's office had been poorly kept during the period under audit. Due to these conditions an enormous amount of detail work was involved."

McCasland reported that all other accounts in Sebastian County, both in the Fort Smith district and in the Greenwood District, were found in good condition.

The audit was compiled by accountants Earl L. Pryor, Odell I. Moudy, and Dale Jefferson.

Copies of the report have been filed with the Sebastian County Clerk and county judge as required by law, McCasland said.

Cites Need of Farm Markets

MEMPHIS (AP) — The president of the Tennessee Farm Bureau Federation says agricultural research nowadays should be directed toward finding more markets for farm products.

Tom J. Hinch of Columbia told the Tennessee Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee yesterday that "there's much work to be done in this field and it should be pushed now."

"Research to increase yields and to improve quality is still essential," he said, "but what farmers need most now are better markets and a better distribution system for their products."

Scranton, Pa. Area to Get Union Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman McClellan (D-Ark) says the Senate Rackets Investigating Committee will hold hearings for about three days, beginning Tuesday, on practices in the Scranton, Pa., area.

McClellan, in announcing the starting date yesterday, did not indicate the matters to be taken up, nor would he name witnesses to be called. Earlier, committee sources go into alleged "strong arm" tactics by some unions.

The committee has indicated its staff was looking into affairs of some building trades unions and the Teamsters Union.

Meanwhile, the president of the American Bar Association David F. Maxwell of Philadelphia, said here last night "prompt action will be taken to disbar any lawyer implicated in a criminal conspiracy, whether in a numbers racket, a labor racket or any other racket."

He did not mention any practicing lawyers, but added:

"The bar association has been deeply shocked by disclosures of the United States Senate Rackets Committee linking several lawyers with criminal enterprises of certain labor union chieftains."

"Based upon the evidence uncovered by the McClellan committee investigation, action to disbar the offending attorneys will be brought by grievance committees of local bar associations."

British Advise U. S. to Leave Suez Up to UN

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Britain is reported to be advising the United States to toss back into the United Nations Security Council the dispute with Egypt over future operation of the Suez Canal.

Several Allied countries, including Britain, are said to feel that direct American negotiations are making no progress toward getting any major concessions in Egypt's new operating plan.

U. S. Ambassador Raymond A. Hare met for an hour yesterday in Cairo with Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Fawzi in a resumption of the negotiations which had been reported deadlocked after four sessions last week.

The Egyptian plan would keep canal operation entirely under Egyptian control, with all tolls paid directly to that country.

The United States seeks modifications to give greater protection for shipping companies of user nations.

Amoth other things the United States wants Egypt to include in its proposed declaration of canal policy a statement of six principles set forth by the Security Council last fall. A major purpose of the principles was to insulate the day-to-day workings of the canal against Egyptian political manipulation.

Some diplomats say failure to get the six principles included in the formal statement would provide a basis for taking the matter back to the Security Council.

They were not certain what would be accomplished by such procedure if Egypt intends to stand firm on its position. Russia, with veto rights in the Security Council, has been supporting Egypt.

At the same time, if the U. S. Egyptian talks collapse, raising the problem anew in the Security Council would keep the argument going in the hope that eventually some better protection for users of the waterway might be achieved.

Rape Story Is Investigated by Police

FORT SMITH (AP) — City and county police are continuing their investigation of a young matron's story that she was raped and her 3-year-old daughter threatened by two men who forced her to drive outside of town on a lonely country road.

Detective Clyde Grigsby said that the 21-year-old woman told him that a man accosted her as she stopped her car at a laundry about 7 p. m. Monday. She said that the man threatened her 3-year-old daughter and forced her to drive through adjacent Van Buren and along a country road.

Another man followed in another car and each raped her three times. Grigsby quoted the woman as saying, "She said that the men apparently did not have weapons but they repeatedly threatened her 3-year-old daughter during the six hours the cars were parked."

One of the men, and possibly both, had been drinking, Grigsby said.

The men finally left in their car, the woman said, and she drove home, arriving there about 2 a. m. Her husband, who was at home with another small child, reported his wife missing earlier in the night, Grigsby said.

NEW YORK (AP) — A New York couple arrested on spy charges pleaded guilty today to a court carrying a maximum prison term of 10 years.

The couple, Jack Sobel and his wife Myra, pleaded guilty to a charge of conspiring with Russian nationals to obtain documents and other material relating to U. S. defense.

They had been indicted also on a charge of conspiring to transmit to the Soviet Union secret information vital to U. S. defense. The maximum penalty for this is death.

Stobler, 53, and his wife, 52, stood pale and motionless before U. S. Dist. Judge Richard H. Levett as their plea was entered by their attorney.

They were indicted, along with Jacob Altmann, 64, on six counts: One count, conspiring to transmit to the Soviet Union secret information vital to U. S. defense, carries a death penalty on conviction.

The government did not say immediately whether it intends to prosecute the Sobels on the other five counts.

The Sobels were arrested in their New York apartment by the FBI on Jan. 25. Altmann was arrested the same day, at his New York residence.

Judge Levett scheduled the Sobels' sentencing for May 3 on the charge to which they pleaded guilty.

Texarkana, Exempt From Sales Tax, to Get $200,000 for Schools

EDITOR'S NOTE — The following story appeared in Texarkana Gazette this morning. Texarkana, Ark., is exempt from paying sales tax.

TEXARKANA — The Texarkana, Ark., school district will get approximately $200,000 additional in state aid as the result of the sales tax increase in Arkansas.

Superintendent W. M. Locke said Tuesday afternoon that 75 percent of the additional money must be paid to the 100 classroom teaching positions that the district now has. That figures out to an average increase of $770 per teaching position per annum.

The school board has already approved a $650 per annum increase in the base pay of teacher salaries, and these will go into effect next September. The difference between that figure and the $770 average calculated on the total additional state aid will be spread among teachers who qualify for more than $650 by reason of more training and experience he said.

The beginning salary for a college graduate with a bachelor degree will be $3215 in the school system next year, Locke said that is a direct result of the increase in state aid from the sales tax hike. It will enable the Arkansas side to hold teachers against the heretofore higher-paying Texas side.

The superintendent said the Minimum Foundation Program plus Act 88 "has tied the thing down" so that the school districts have to pay this additional money to the teachers.

He was not upset by Gov. Orval Faubus' veto of Rep. Talbot Field's House Bill 565 which would have assured teachers of top priority when tax funds are distributed in the next biennium.

He said the governor could not afford to let the Field bill become law because it would have upset the appropriations scheduled in the revenue stabilization setup.

"And regardless of how important public education may be, the schools must share with the other state agencies in an equitable distribution of state funds," he added.

Furthermore, he said the Field bill contained provisions similar to a proposed constitutional amendment that would have earmarked certain portions of the state funds for school purposes before other functions of state government were cared for. This amendment was defeated by popular vote some years ago.

"This veto will not affect the distribution of school aid received from the increase in the sales tax because Act 245 of the 1957 General Assembly, which is referred

Innocent Man Freed After 2½ Years

BOSTON (AP) — Santos Rodriguez, 26, was a free man today after the State of Massachusetts rectified the mistake under which he was sentenced to life in prison for a murder he did not commit.

He had served 2½ years.

The Puerto Rican restaurant worker walked out of the prison colony at Norfolk last night wearing a new suit the state gave him and with $52 in cash he had earned in prison.

With a wide grin, he said: "I give my thanks to God and the people who helped. All my prayers be answered one by one. I hope God bless all the people that help me in this case, this case that was my life."

The state acted after seven years ago. Peets, 34, of Springfield, confessed he and Rodriguez killed Mrs. Mildred Hosmer, 43, in a Springfield rooming house more than three years ago.

Peets pleaded guilty to manslaughter last Friday and was sentenced to one to 20 years in prison.

A Superior Court jury in Springfield convicted Rodriguez, one-time busboy after a "confession" he signed was read into the court record.

On his release last night, Rodriguez said of the statement he signed: "I wrote down everything they tell me to write. The police pushed me around, pushed me against a steam pipe and hit me a few times."

Police denied all of Rodriguez' assertions of brutality.

A legislative committee is considering a proposal to pay Rodriguez $60,000 for his unjust imprisonment.

Highway Group Will Decide Salary Scales

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Highway Commission planned to meet today and decide what its salary scales will be under the $14 million dollar appropriation which goes into effect July 1.

A special legislative session okayed the record money grant to the department last month. The appropriation sets aside salary funds totaling $6,662,900 for 1957-58 and $9,727,000 for 1958-59.

Highway Director Herbert Eldridge said yesterday that the commission may hold several meetings before all scales are fixed.

Although scales for engineers and other fulltime workers are listed at maximum rates in the new act, the commission does not have to abide by the amounts suggested.

On the other hand, the Legislature set minimum scales for workers paid on an hourly basis. These minimum include — unskilled 1.50, intermediate $1.20, skilled 1.50, truck driver $1.20, moving machine operator $1.20, bulldozer operator $1.50 and area foreman 300 per month.

Clash Is Natural Over Program, President Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower said today it is only natural that there might be a clash of opinion between him and some members of Congress over the legislative program.

Eisenhower told his news conference that he accepts honest criticism and ignores personal criticism. He said criticism does not affect his health.

The President was asked if he was aware that Sen. Goldwater (R-Ariz.) had characterized Eisenhower's $71,800,000,000 budget as a betrayal of Republican trust.

Eisenhower said members of Congress have a right to their opinions. He said historically there has always been a clash of ideas and of methods of promoting those ideas.

Without any direct reference to Goldwater's criticism of the "modern Republicanism" which Eisenhower has been advocating, the President said in this day and time the government cannot limit itself to the processes of 1890.

He said the government must adapt the principles of the Constitution to the inescapable industrial conditions of today.

Arkansans in Try to Give Tax Relief

By GORDON BROWN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Fulbright's proposal to provide tax relief for small corporations got kicked around and rather soundly defeated in the Senate the other day after two days of intensive debate.

Fulbright had 30 other senators as sponsors for his proposal and was rather hopeful of picking up some additional strength on the floor. He did manage to sway two other senators to support him but went down swining, 52 to 33, which is rather lop-sided.

His proposal, which he had advocated for several years, would have provided lower corporations but somewhat higher taxes for the corporations in the bigger income brackets.

The cards were more or less stacked against him from the beginning. Since tax legislation must originate in the House, Fulbright's only chance lay in tacking his proposal on as an amendment to some tax bill which passed the House.

The bill that came along was one to extend the present rates of corporation income tax for another 15 months, rates which would have expired April 1 otherwise.

By accident or design the Bill didn't clear the House with much more than time for the Senate to act prior to the deadline.

There were some reports that oil state Congressmen didn't want the bill out earlier, as they hoped to head off any move to reduce the oil depletion allowance.

At any rate, there was a valid argument that because of the lack of time any amendment to the bill in the Senate might delay the bill beyond April 1 with a result that some taxes would be lost.

So this operated against the Fulbright proposal.

There also was considerable opposition to the proposal itself. Generally the opposition fell into two categories — one that the proposal, while providing tax relief for small corporations, actually increased taxes on the other corporations and two, that while the proposal would provide tax relief for small corporations no such relief was provided for small businesses which weren't incorporated.

Fulbright's proposal had the active opposition of Sens. Byrd (D-Va) and Kerr (D-Okla) chairman and ranking Democrat, respectively, of the Senate Finance Committee.

The Arkansas Senator may possibly try again later in the year if Merhametziz.

He paused a moment, and Allan realized that he was deeply moved.

"Go on, Georges," he said softly. "What you said this afternoon was true. If Seknou is to prosper, now is the time. Now is the time when little nations, little nations who are deserving, get a chance to govern themselves. Many little nations do not know how to do it, and the big nations who are giving them their freedom are being stupid. It is like telling a child who has just learned how to dress himself, and how to clean itself, and how to brush its teeth: 'You are grown up! Govern yourself!'"

The French are more sensible than some of the other nations. I have every reason to hate the French, but I am not afraid of saying it. The French have poured money and some of their best people into countries like Tunisia, and why should they go away now? Tunisia is a child. The French are not yet ready to say: 'Look! The child is grown up! It is time for us to leave the child! It does not like its foster parents, so the foster parents must go!' The French have more sense."

"Go on," said Allan, after another pause.

"My mother sees Seknou spreading into a great Mediterranean empire, not in her lifetime perhaps, but certainly in Camille's or his son's. You saw Kasim Mourali this morning. I understand. Do you know that only a year ago she caused his eldest son to be executed. In Seknou, under the eyes of the French, and that Kasim, with all the traditions of blood feuds running deep in his blood, agreed that the sentence was just, before the execution?"

"No really!" said Allan. "Kasim sent his son to be educated in Tunis, against her advice. When he reminded her that she had sent us to France, she said that that was a different matter, and that we could be ruled no to be corrupted by propaganda, whereas Faisal Mourali could not. Faisal came back changed, and my mother took a dislike to him. Last year, in Seknou, he was in a coffee house, and he was saying that Tunisia in general and Seknou in particular had benefited from French rule, and that our policy should be to go slowly. It was reported to my mother, and he was ordered to retract but instead he said that the days of my mother's rule were over, and that the world was being governed in a different way nowadays, and that if the Seknougais wanted to govern themselves they must be patient until they knew a little more. Kasim asked that he should be given another chance, and he admitted that he had been wrong in sending Faisal away against my mother's advice; but my mother insisted that he should be killed, and he was."

Another tax bill comes along, but chances are he won't. That lop-sided vote just wasn't too encouraging.

Both Arkansas senators threw their support to the $1-billion dollar water projects authorization bill which passed the Senate 42-22 during the week. This isn't surprising since the bill would authorize numerous important projects in Arkansas.

Included in the bill, for instance, are the 53 million dollar Millwood project for the Little River and the 57 million dollar Lone Rock and Gilbert reservoirs in the White River basin.

President Eisenhower vetoed a similar bill last year and there is speculation he may do so again this year. The Senate vote lacked a little of being sufficient to override a veto but since a third of the senators were absent it is debatable whether this year's measure has sufficient support to enact the bill over a veto.

Senate debate on the water projects bill was enlivened by the wit and humorous remarks of Sen. Douglas (D-Ill) in support of his move to trim the bill.

While describing how projects began, through the enthusiasm of some local group, Douglas said that sometimes a group on a river wants the stream deepened for navigation.

"There is an intoxication in the consideration of the possibility of a steamboat whistle around the bend which at times deprives people of all sense," said Douglas.

Once sentiment for a project is started, Douglas said, local Chambers of Commerce put the pressure on their Congressmen to support it.

"I hope my Republican colleagues will forgive me if I say that since there is an intimate connection between the republican Party and the local Chambers of Commerce, the Republicans usually agree with them," he continued.

The Democrats also agree with them because, while we never get the support of the Chambers of Commerce, we always live in hope."

British Will Not Delay Bomb Tests

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Macmillan today handed Japan's special envoy his reply — presumably "no" — to Premier Nobusuke Kishi's personal appeal that Britain postpone her forthcoming H-bomb tests in the Pacific.

The envoy, Dr. Masatoshi Matsushita, hastened to the Japanese Embassy after his 10-minute visit to discuss the reply with Ambassador Haruhiko Nishi, Matsushita, who has been here 10 days press-

The Rare Adventure by BERNARD FERGUSON

XXVII

Georges gave a deep sigh, and shifted his position by Allan. "I said I would tell you about my mother, and then about this afternoon. I did not quite finish about my mother. I told you she was mad. I am afraid there is still much to tell."

"Go on."

"You know about the wife of the Rajah as you call him. Up till then, of course, we were pure English."

"The son from whom I am descended was killed in the Boer war, but his son married a Ben Ishak, a grand daughter of the Mekis, a Ben Ishak of the same time as the Mekis. Other generations have married. My great grandfather married a Ben Ishak, except once, a Khourim."

"They are a tribe in the North-west of Tunisia who were often in the field against the Bey's. Our name, Fergusson, comes from the Khourim, a Ben Ishak was a great uncle of mine when there was going to be fighting. When it became known that I was a Ben Ishak, I was called a Ben Ishak. I was a great person, and a worthy descendant of our ancestors, but she doesn't understand, she doesn't understand that the world has changed."

They sat on for several minutes in a silence which Allan was resolved not to break.

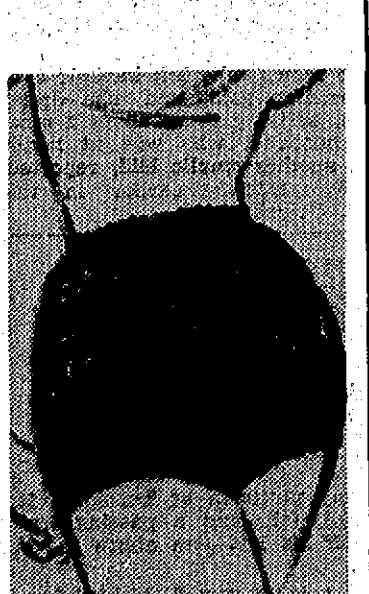

"My mother," resumed Georges without warning, "worships Al Merhametziz and everything he ever did. She goes and prays to him in that room we took you to this afternoon. She believes that he speaks to her. She even believes now that it was from him that she learned that you were coming to Seknou. She is proud of his name, the Pitiless, and she is pitiless too. The Seknougais know that he is still there in Clusium, and some believe that he is still alive. She thinks that this rising will succeed, and she believes that she will be the Vicereine of Al Merhametziz in Seknou, when the French are driven out. My mother has ruled Seknou under the noses of the French for almost all her life. The French have wondered why the courts they have established have only little cases to try. If she gets a silly little case in front of her, she says: 'Take that to the French courts!' and everybody laughs, but that is where they go. My mother is the ruler of Seknou, and she could have gone on being the ruler of Seknou, and Camille after her, if she would only have rested content. But now she wants the public glory as well as the private power, and she does not know that the world has changed since the days of Al

The Alpha Delta Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma Society met in the home of Mrs. Ruth Haugen with Mrs. Nolle Hinton as associate hostess on April 2, at 4 p. m. Beautiful arrangements of lovely spring flowers were placed at vantage points throughout the guest rooms.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Phoebe Perkins, after a short business meeting at which time was discussed the Southern Regional meeting to be held in Hot Springs in August. Mrs. Mammie Jackson and Mrs. Phoebe Perkins also gave an interesting report on the state meeting held in Little Rock on March 29 and 30th.

Mrs. Florence Hyatt, program chairman, asked Mrs. Jackson to give an informative talk concerning Progress in Educational T. V. It was brought out that T. V. programs cannot be previewed, and most educators think that schools will eventually use television, with one teacher devoting all of her time to preparing educational television programs.

Borden Spends Millions in Arkansas

The Borden Company spent $55,993,744 in Arkansas and Texas last year, it was reported here today. This compares with $52,486,922 in 1955.

Mark Soderquist, manager of the Texarkana plant, pointed out that these totals represented the money paid for raw products and ingredients, and to employees in payroll checks. They did not include amounts paid to local and state governments in various taxes and assessments, he added. In our own Four States Area, farm income and employee payrolls amounted to almost $1,600,000 in 1956.

In addition, Mr. Soderquist said, there were 961 Borden stockholders in the states of Texas and Arkansas who shared in its 1956 dividends. The average Borden stockholder owns 97 shares, and cash dividends of $2.80 per share were paid in 1956. An average of 22,590 people were employed by Borden's in the two states last year.

"Right now I'm studying civil engineering, and I think I'll stay with it. Engineering is something that has a changing problem every day."

Dick, happily settled in his new home with his pretty wife, Lorone, is now teaching his 10-year-old son, Gregg, how to be a baseball catcher.

"People should offer help to a handicapped person except when he actually needs it."

"I don't know of anything a fellow can't do — if he really wants to."

"The main thing is for an employer to give a man a little time to work out his own technique of handling a job. Then it will work out all right."

"But it is the employer — the man who gives the handicapped fellow a chance to show what he can do — who deserves all the credit."

Dick, who built his 22,000 three-bedroom, two-bath home in about a year, figures he saved about $8,000 in labor costs by doing his own work.

In one way he feels having only one arm speeded up the job.

"I never had to worry about smashing a finger driving nails," he said, grinning.

TV Newsmen Well Worth Hearing

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — In the course of an hour on weekday evenings innumerable television viewers have a choice of one of three news broadcasts on the three networks. They are John Daly (ABC-TV), Douglas Edwards (CBS-TV) and Chet Huntley and David Brinkley (NBC-TV).

Personally I watch one and usually two of these programs nearly every evening. Over a period of time it's difficult to say that one is better than the others. Night after night they run neck and neck.

Recently, however, I've made an interesting discovery — perhaps about myself rather than these gentlemen. I've developed a habit of tuning to one or another depending on my mood, which unquestionably is not a sound basis for judging a news telecast.

When I feel depressed, John Daly cheers me up. This is a guy I'd like to act as spokesman for my doctor if I'm ever informed I have an incurable disease. Without being at all polyanic, Daly makes me feel that things are not quite as bad as all indications make them seem.

When I feel elated, Chet Huntley levels me off a bit. This is a guy I like to have bring me good news. Without being a sourpuss, Huntley somehow manages to prevent me from feeling too elated; after all, tomorrow the news may be very bad indeed.

When I'm positive in my opinions, David Brinkley, Huntley's Washington partner, is a good antidote to my dogmatism. He can demolish an argument with a very smile.

When I don't know how I feel, Douglas Edwards can show me how I presumably ought to feel: even keeled, earnest, steady as she goes.

None of these commentators seeks to be a showman. Each comes on the home screen to bring us an objective account of the news. Yet it's impossible to separate entirely news from personality on TV. In this area, as

You Don't Want to Pet? Why Not Try Saying No?

Dear Dorothy Dix: The boy I've been dating is very nice, but lately every date winds up in a battle of wills about petting. We've gone pretty far, and I'm afraid he'll persuade me further. He's asked me to his cabin for a week end. Should I go? AUDREY

Dear Audrey: If you can pronounce words of one syllable, get set with a resounding no to any further suggestions of petting parties. If you don't know why, my leaflet, "The Petting Problem," may set you straight. It will be sent to you on receipt of a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Among the consequences of that week-end at a cabin will be the certain acquisition of a most unenviable reputation.

much as in entertainment, there exist the old subjective reactions that make television the most contentious subject on earth.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I'm 18 and engaged to a wonderful boy. However, he seems to have another interest besides me — baseball. He plays in a minor league, and all he dreams, thinks, talks is baseball and his hopes of becoming a major league player. He loves me, but he admits he puts sports first. I think I should come first. CORINNE

Dear Corinne: Many seasoned wives will tell you that they come first with their husbands — after his work. Your fiancé's work is also his hobby, pastime and relaxation. Furthermore, he's very young.

Be glad that his interest isn't other women, alcohol, or gambling. Baseball you can survive!

Dear Dorothy Dix: My parents have always kept me under lock and key. I've never been permitted to act or dress as normal teenagers do. Finally they allowed me to go to a girl friend's party, and there I met the man of my dreams. I've seen him secretly every night since.

When I found I was pregnant and told Stately, he laughed at me. He said I was a foolish kid and had to learn the hard way. What shall I do? BELINDA

Dear Belinda: Tell your parents. Certainly they aren't the ones who kept you under such strict supervision, how come you were able to get out every night?

Aren't you dramatizing the situation a little bit? Apparently you should have been kept under sterner surveillance, if anything.

Four Persons Meet Violent Death in State

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Four persons met violent deaths in Arkansas yesterday. Highway mishaps cost two lives, one person died as a result of a thug-euthy accident and a man was shot fatally.

A Louisiana airman died in the collision of his car and a trailer-truck on U. S. Highway 92 about 4 1/2 miles east of Crossett.

Police identified the victim as Sgt. William M. Sanders, 25, of Shreveport, La., stationed at Whitman Air Force Base near Sedalia, Mo. The truck driver, Johnny Boone of El Dorado, was unhurt.

Lon Laird, 26, of Wesley, was killed on state Highway 74 near Fayetteville when his car rolled backward down a slope and over turned.

State Trooper Kenneth McKee said the vehicle traveled several hundred feet before it overturned and Laird apparently died instantly.

A 65-year-old farmer suffered fatal injuries when a tree fell on him as he was cutting timber near Nashville.

L. V. Harding, of Center Point, was found pinned under the tree by two men working nearby. He died on the way to a hospital.

A Negro man was shot fatally late last night at College Station, a suburb of Little Rock. Attendants at a Little Rock hospital identified his tentatively as Sam Adams, 37, of College Station. They said he was shot in the back and right leg.

34-Year-Old Claim Is Declared Valid

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Gen. Bruce Bennett says $55,000 legal fee appropriation to pay a 34-year-old claim is valid even though the bill did not win a three-fourths voting majority.

The money was appropriated for payment to the estate of the late William Brooks for cotton seed he loaned to the state Prison Farm in 1919. Bennett said yesterday that the claim, which had been pending since 1923, was a just debt of the state and therefore required only a simple majority approval.

The state had paid Brooks a smaller sum but his heirs contended for years that it was insufficient.

State Treasurer J. Vance Clayton resuscitated the option.

Waller to Coach at the University

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Two prominent Arkansas athletic coaches have resigned from school jobs at Harrison and Magnolia.

W. J. Cromwell, coach of the West team in the Arkansas all-star high school football game to be played at Little Rock in August, yesterday quit as head coach at Harrison High School to take a post with a business firm.

A few hours later, P. T. (Daddy) Waller, basketball coach at Southern State College resigned to accept an assistant's post under Glen Rose, basketball mentor at the University of Arkansas.

Southern State President Dolph Camp said Waller's successor had been picked but that his name would not be announced for a while.

Johnnie Burnett of the Arkansas Athletic Association said at Little Rock yesterday that Cromwell's resignation from his school job did not affect his eligibility as coach of the West all-stars. Burnett said it was up to Cromwell whether he would coach the team.

Omar Stevens, superintendent of Harrison schools, said Cromwell, whose resignation will be effective June 30.

Lineups of 3 Teams May Be Changed About

By BEN OLAN

Who's going to play second base for Brooklyn Third base for the Boston Red Sox and Cleveland Indians and Catch for the Chicago Cubs.

Probably never have so many major league clubs closed in on baseball's opening day with so many vacancies still to be filled.

At least 10 managers will have to come up with decisions before next week.

Junior Gilliam, Brooklyn's regular second baseman last season is a clinch to be in the opening day lineup. But he may start at third base with Charley Neal at second and Gino Cimoli in left field.

Frank Matzone and Ted Lepcio are in a dogfight for the Red Sox third base job. Bobby Avila and Billy Harrel are in the running for the same post with the Indians. Ray Boone and Eddie Robinson are the contenders for first base with the Tigers.

The regular catenating spot with the Cubs is a tossup among Cal Neuman, Charley Silvera and Ray Kalt. White Sox Manager Al Lopez is undecided about Jim Rivera and Walt Dropo for first base. There's no sure thing at third base for the New York Giants with Darryl Spencer, Ossie Virgil and Foster Casterman all competing.

In yesterday's exhibition games Neil slapped a two-run double off Corky Valentine with one out. In the ninth inning to give the Dodgers a 5-4 victory over the Milwaukee Braves. Brooklyn went into the final frame trailing 4-1.

Neuman and right-handed pitcher Moe Drabowsky combined to lead the Cubs to an 8-3 triumph over Baltimore. Neuman knocked in four runs with a home run and two doubles. Drabowsky went the distance and permitted only five singles.

OUT OF DOORS with Field & Stream

By JOE STETSON
Dog Editor

When a dog moves he must travel under his center of gravity, which means pretty much under his center line.

To get his legs under his center line, a tall dog's legs need slant but little and there need be small turn of pastern to apply thrust in a straight line from the inward slant.

Thus, tall dogs can be and usually are almost straight as well as long legged.

Let's consider the short legged dog. His legs must not only bend under the body toward the center line, but must then straighten out again at the pastern so that the thrust is vertical and in line with the body.

Since it must do this in a relatively short distance, it must of necessity be more crooked than the leg of a tall dog.

This need to be under the center of gravity is more essential for the forelegs than the hind since the forelegs must carry the weight of the heavier end of the body, plus the head and neck. The hind legs function primarily for propulsion.

So, among our shorter legged friends, we find what we call the "fiddle" or "Chippendale" fronts.

When you look at the Pandie Dinnants, Sealyhams, dachshunds, bassets, Skyes and the many other longer bodied, shorter dogs, remember that there is good reason for the structure of their limbs.

Were the legs straight down from the corners, they would be committed to the rolling gait of the bulldog, which rolls to the right and left over legs like a fat man who must walk with his feet wide spread.

The curves of shorter legged dogs are nature's neat trick of adapting shorter legs so that they can apply themselves to a job originally intended for long ones.

Group to Set Up Principles for Officials

By EDMOND LE BRETON

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Hollifield (D-Calif.) said today a House subcommittee he heads will prepare "a finding on principles" to govern officials whose private and public interests may conflict.

A clarification in that field was asked yesterday by Robert Tripp Ross, who resigned as assistant secretary of defense after military contracts inquiry onto military contracts with companies owned by his wives family.

Ross has steadfastly insisted he did not use his position in any way to further the affairs of the Wynn Enterprises and affiliated companies owned principally by Mrs. Ross and her brother Herbert D. Wynn. He contended he derived no benefit personally from the contracts they were awarded.

However, he resigned Feb. 14, saying the investigations had impaired his usefulness in the Defense Department post.

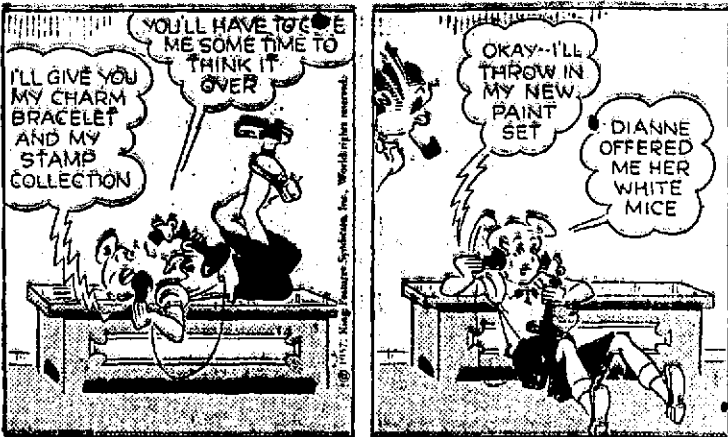

Mrs. Ross and Wynn backed him in their testimony to the Government Operations subcommittee yesterday. Mrs. Ross said she thought a great injustice had been done her husband and that there was "no more honorable man" in public life.

Hollifield told newsmen today, "There will be a statement in the subcommittee report to serve as a guide in such cases in the future."

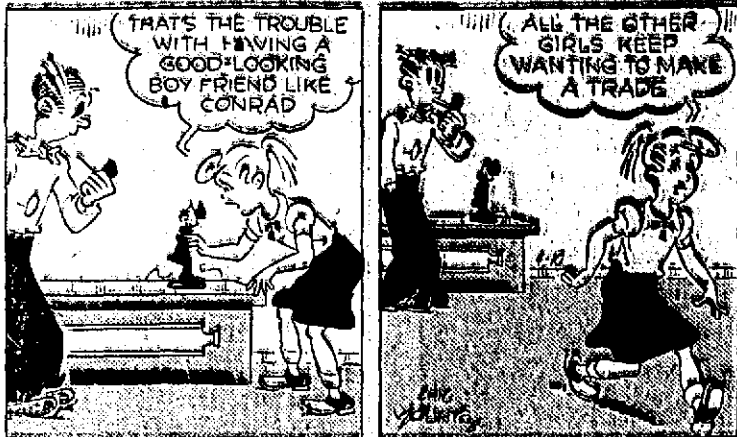

He said it will

Locke explained that Act 68 requires that all increases made available in state funds under the provisions of the Minimum Foundation Program shall be used for the payment of salaries of classroom teachers.

"That act further provides that not less than 75 per cent of the increase shall be used in the payment of salaries of teaching positions existing during 1956-57," he said. ## Aid Plan May Get Them Off a Hook

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Eisenhower administration has offered an idea to pull both itself and Congress off a hook and still get what it wants: money for a big and continuing foreign aid program.

Secretary of State Dulles suggests a method — hardly more than a bookkeeping rearrangement — which will make it easier for Congress to vote the money and keep the people back home off its neck.

In 10 years this country has provided over 50 billion dollars in foreign aid. This year President Eisenhower asked Congress for $4,400,000,000. Unless the administration could find a way to bail itself out, Congress was certain to cut the amount.

There were obvious reasons: the economy mood in Congress; the fact that some members take a dim view of foreign aid anyway; and protests from the people back home against what critics of foreign aid call the "give-away."

Much of the resentment from the voters may come from confusion over the nature of the aid being given. It takes two forms: weapons and economic assistance. By far the biggest part of the money being spent on foreign aid goes into the weapons and into the related program of defense support for U. S. partners in military pacts.

Unless this distinction is made, it is easy to think of the whole foreign aid program as money being shoveled out. But the military assistance is considered an essential part of this country's own military defenses.

Eisenhower not only believes continuance of foreign aid necessary, in the amount he asked, but last year asked Congress to approve it on a long-range, 10-year basis for some projects.

There was a reason for that: it would enable countries receiving the economic help, particularly the underdeveloped countries, to plan big developments in the only way they could be planned: long range. But Eisenhower didn't fight and Congress kept the program on a year-by-year basis.

Those who have studied foreign aid closely understand the need for it. Since last summer 29 special studies in this field have been made and released publicly.

Two were by commission appointed by Eisenhower and 21 including individuals and professional groups hired for the purpose — were appointed by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Overwhelmingly they were in favor of continuing foreign aid. Some would make it bigger. Many backed the idea of putting it on long-range system. As a whole, they wanted the economic help given in loans rather than in grants.

This week Dulles proposed that Congress continue both the military and economic aid programs but split them up. He would shove the money for weapons into the defense budget while keeping the strictly economic part of foreign aid separate.

Members of Congress would find it easier to explain to the people back home their vote for defense money than their vote for a whopping big foreign aid program which includes weapons, loans and grants. And the separate total for foreign economic aid would look much smaller than the $4,400,000,000 which Eisenhower requested for both military and economic help.

Dulles-carrying out Eisenhower's proposal of last year to some extent — asked also that foreign aid be put on a long-range basis, at least to the extent of several years ahead instead of having Congress wrestle with it year by year.

And, while suggesting that most of the economic help be in loans rather than in grants, Dulles also asked for more flexibility for Eisenhower in handling foreign aid.

Jordan's Left Wing Group Resigns

By WALTER LOGAN
AP Staff Correspondent

King Hussein, Jordan's 22-year-old Western-minded monarch, demanded and received the resignation of Premier Sulaiman El Nabulsi, apparently as direct result of their differences over the Eisenhower doctrine for the Middle East and Nabulsi's leanings toward Russia.

The shakeup of the Jordanian government came at a time of mounting new tensions in the Middle East and the reported failure of the United States to reach agreement with Egypt on the future of the Suez Canal.

The Arab states were reported readying a protest to the United States against its "violation" of Arab territorial waters by sending an American tanker up the Gulf of Aqaba to the Israeli Port of Eilat.

Contributing also to the atmosphere of tension and deadlock were renewed charges and counter-charges between Israel and Egypt of aggression or aggressive intent. Nabulsi's resignation climaxed a
